

2012 Capital Bond Program

March 18, 2012

The city of Dallas is currently soliciting resident input on potential projects that should be included in the 2012 capital improvement program bond issue. Bond money is used to construct, repair, and improve city infrastructure and facilities such as roads, sidewalks, drainage improvements, libraries, etc. The process of developing the bond program began in February, and will continue until the Council votes on the bond issue in November. There are two scheduled rounds of public input. Currently, public input is being used to influence the city staff's recommended plan. Once the recommended plan has been completed, there will be another round of comment on the plan in June. It is vitally important that residents and neighborhoods make their desires known in order to influence the make-up of the program, especially since there will be a push by the city to use some of the bond money for economic development projects.
